study. I attended all the exams without interruption with perseverance, this ensured comprehensive coverage of the syllabus and helped me complete my exams. Completing my final year of exams is a significant milestone, which brought a mix of relief and excitement. This feeling of excitement and

Hello everyone!!

Welcome back to my last and final report.

Academic journey

I sought guidance from Pranjal bhaiya who helped me with my course, thus addressing my strength as well as weakness. By creating a study plan with the time I got in the day as well as at night, I assessed myself through mock tests and previous years' question papers. This helped me reinforce my understanding. This approach helped me emphasize time management and targeted always try to be there on time so that I can instil discipline and respect for schedules which is crucial for life skills, this also to create an example for the youngsters. I get engaged with the children by participating in running sessions, demonstrating exercises, and organizing them into teams. This involvement makes the activities enjoyable but also fosters a sense of camaraderie and teamwork. This leadership in team formation encourages collaboration and communication among the children. Regular exercises are associated with numerous benefits and thus by explaining the benefits of doing the enthusiasm is of the years of hard work and dedication I have invested in my studies. I received commendable marks in my results as well as in my assignments, reflecting the preparation and consistent effort. This accomplishment boosts my confidence and sets a positive tone for my future endeavours. The end of this phase marks the beginning of new opportunities and challenges ahead.

Games

I enjoy doing the physical activities like playing games and going for treks with the campers or any other physical activities. I like staying fit and want the others to stay fit too thus fostering personal development and social skills. I exercises I make them do these as warm ups before starting the games. I enjoy playing games with the others.

Shramdaan

I always try to be punctual in all the periods, though it be shramdaan, games or during class. Our duty starts at 6:30 in the morning, after the children have completed their yoga session, by assigning tasks to the children, I oversee their execution. This allows the children to learn practical skills and understand the importance of contributing to community efforts. I also engage myself with the work that assigned to me by demonstrating myself and thus showing them the proper way to do the task.

Sports day

The sports day event was a very memorable moment. I had been assigned the pyramid corner even though I had my exams, but by taking out some time I contributed by taking up formations and getting perfection in the formations that the children had formed. We had completed all the formations of the pyramid in just two weeks and thus for the other few days that were there we worked hard on getting perfection in the formations that they had formed. There were 19 students in all. We had fun while practising so that the children won't get bored after practising for many a times. We also showed them some videos of other people forming pyramids so that they too get inspired and can try to do better.

Volunteering

Project class (Courage Group)

In this class, we completed three topics namely types of machines, part of plants, habitat of animals and also did question answers from the 2nd and 3rd book of living science. We did lots of experiments with the children which they enjoyed doing very much. The experiments were based on the topic that they did, such as they made a pulley, they saw the working of an inclined plane. While they were doing the topic of the plants, I had taken up the part of the xerophyte, the plants that grew in the desert. The children made drawings and accordingly I labelled it. Along with the children I also got a lot of information about the things I had never known about.

Social science (Perseverance Group)

During these six months we covered only a few chapters as there was a lot of interruptions in between as the children had gone for the trip and then they became busy for the annual Sports Day and later a camp had come with whom they were doing the classes. We took lots of tests on these chapters and also asked a lot of questions regarding the chapter. I also learnt a lot about the landforms and also about the earth coming into existence. I also have to read more in order to give more information to the children.

Social Science (Receptivity Group)

I enjoyed teaching the children history, as history is one of my favourite subject. I made notes and also made them understand the concepts by making flow charts and drawings on the board so that they can remember the concepts better and also understand it. We also made charts with them and displayed it in the group so that all the other students can see and also remember the concepts. We were able to complete five chapters and solve the questions with it. I made them do debate on which is better- town or a village. This was the first time they did any debate and it was really a very enjoyable experience.

English (Victory Group)

This class took place in the evening after the Satsung. The children like listening to stories so I told them lots of moral stories and also asked them questions after they had completed listening to the story. I sometimes asked them to tell stories by creating it themselves and I corrected the sentences when they were speaking. They have started doing grammar under my guidance and whenever they have any doubt they always come, and I clear it for them. They like listening to stories from me and also sometimes I show them moral stories so that they can learn some values and ethics from that.

Bihar Trip report

The excursion to Bihar was an exciting and amazing adventure for us as it was like a twist in the tale. We explored Bihar while enjoying the hospitality of the Bihar people.

We started our journey on 25th Jan in the evening, as we first went to Bhubaneswar for some sightseeing. We visited the science museum where a professor showed us some interesting science experiments which everyone enjoyed very much. We then proceeded to the Baraha temple. Later that day we hired a bus to take us to Bhitarkanika, where we saw many a huge as well as baby crocodiles. It was most memorable seeing the crocodiles basking in the sun, and some floating in the water. As per our schedule, we then visited a museum in Bhitarkanika. The Panchlingeswar temple was another holy place that we visited where five lingas had appeared from the ground and water was flowing on top.

We then visited a Jagannath temple in Balasore, and the Khir chor Gopinath temple- another temple of Lord Krishna; the temples were very nicely kept, and it gave us a heavenly vibe on visiting them. We also visited the Chandipur beach where the beach was devoid of its water and one had to walk over three kilometres in order to see the sea. The sight was something one could never forget. Not to forget, we also visited lots of relics on our way to these places. We then proceeded to Simlipal

Pul which was made of rubber. We also visited the famous Dasharath Manjhi's road which he had made himself for the people to use by cutting the mountain; such was the love for his wife. We then proceeded to the Arai village where we would be staying for the next few days.

to see the famous tigers, we started early in the morning and when we returned from the jeep safari, we were all too dusty. We were unable to see any tiger, but we saw its habitat and other animals such as spotted deer, etc.

We then started our journey to Bihar via train. After alighting off the train, we sat on a bus and went to Sita mandir which was on our way. We crossed over Sita

The next morning, all of us visited the Brahma Kund from where hot spring was coming; most of the children took a bath. After the refreshing bath we went for a nature safari, where we walked on the glass bridge, the sight was amazing, and I wasn't afraid unlike the other children. The next stop was the suspension bridge. The bridge was shaking as one walked making them afraid and dizzy. We then participated in some activities like cycling on the rope; it was something new for us as we had never done any of them.

The next day we visited the famous Nalanda University, the ruins of that place was something one could always appreciate, the material used to make this was really great; the structure too was really interesting. We then were given time to explore by ourselves and see the impressive structure of the place. After that we visited some temples and proceeded to see the Shanti Stupa via ropeway, it was another nice place.

The next day we visited lots of monasteries. The monasteries give a different vibe, and are really nice places to visit. I really enjoyed seeing the monasteries and its structure. Later that day we visited the Kakolat waterfall, where some children took bath in it. While returning we stopped by to see a dam.

The next day, we again visited the Brahma Kund; this time I too went in to take a bath, the water was really refreshing. This day we did many activities, such as going through a maze, boating, sky diving, going on the double zip line and other activities. It was really a fascinating day. In the evening, we visited some caves, where it is said that there are gold mines inside, but all we saw were monkeys.

Our next destination was the famous Sarnath, the place where Lord Buddha had meditated in order to attain enlightenment. The Bodhi Tree was something to look at, not even a leaf of the tree was being spared, and the devotees of Buddha were taking the leaves too and waiting for the leaves to fall from the tree. We cherished some time there in the presence of Lord Buddha. While returning, we dropped by to see the wheel marks of Lord Krishna's chariot on the rocks. We also visited the place where King Jarasandh and Pandava prince Bhim had fought in the ring.

We really enjoyed our stay in Bihar and are really grateful for their hospitality. We performed our tribal dance for them as a small token of appreciation. It was something great for us exploring Bihar and getting to know about its culture and heritage, the days are really something one can never forget.

We then took our leave and left for Rourkela. It was a tiring day and the journey was long, but we spent our time doing some funny activities and passed the time. Our bus broke down and we had to wait for an hour before we could proceed. We reached Rourkela at midnight and rested. The next day was a tiring day as we again visited a lot of places such as the Saraswati Kund, Ved Vyas temple, Kali temple, Tri-shakti Dham and Hanuman temple. We then boarded the train and departed for our home. The twist in the trip was good as we got to explore more of Bihar and their hospitality.
