ACADEMICS

English

Shankurna displays a genuine love for learning and actively participates in various English class activities, including storytelling, learning rhymes, songs, poems, drawing, describing pictures, and participating in small plays for assemblies. However, she finds many aspects of English challenging. Her persistent effort to pronounce consonant and vowel digraphs, such as "sh," "th," "ch," and "ee," is commendable, although it takes considerable time to achieve correct pronunciation. Shankurna is yet to master the "sh" and "th" sounds. She requires significant encouragement to speak and repeat new words with the didis. During drama preparations, she consistently selects main characters but struggles with memorizing dialogues and maintaining correct pronunciation. After substantial effort, improvement is visible, but she sometimes reverts to previous mistakes during the final performance. Shankurna comprehends simple English instructions and can grasp small stories. To aid in her language development, the focus has been placed on small group activities to encourage her progress. On Sri Aurobindo's birthday, Shankurna participated in a creative movement based on Sri Aurobindo's poem "WHO." She learned the lines and recited them effectively, eventually leading the group. During Ganesh Chaturthi, she performed in a drama titled "Ganesh and the Moon," taking on the role of a narrator. While she required a substantial amount of time to memorize her dialogues with correct pronunciation, Shankurna participated happily and sang her favorite song with a loud and melodious voice.

Hindi

Shankurna takes interest in all the activities. She is little show but finishes her works. She can recognize most of the Akshars and can read words. She enjoys singing songs and chants. She thinks too much while telling stories. And listens to stories carefully. She needs to improve her pronunciations.

Maths

Shankurna is making gradual progress in mathematics. She is capable of counting independently from 1 to 200 both forwards and backwards. Her skip counting abilities extend to counting by 2 to 5 with the assistance of Ganit Mala. While she may find two-digit addition and subtraction challenging, she can efficiently add multiple one-digit numbers. Sankurna has a firm grasp of number sequences, including

"after," "before," and "between." She has also learnt the names of basic shapes, including circle, triangle, rectangle, square, and semi-circle.

Projects

Animals

In this topic, she learnt different names of the animals, their homes, their baby's names, parts of animals, and food they eat. She speaks very little in the class. She is a bit slow and takes time in answering the questions asked in the class. She drew her favourite animal 'sheep' and spoke a few lines about it. She also presented in the assembly period by showing her drawn picture to everyone. She also played a game to memorize the names of the animal baby. She did cutting and pasting of animals from the waste books.

National Symbols of India:

For the topic of the national symbols, she learnt the significance of the symbols. She takes time to think the correct answer and responds late. She created her own pictures of some of the symbols and tried to make her picture as best as possible. She got to know the biography of our national father.

Transport:

She needs to be more open up during the class. She loves spending time with her friends while the free period. She needs to improve her concentration power during the class. She rarely gives answers on her own in the class. She drew the pictures of different vehicles and then cut it and made three different modes of charts with her friends. She learnt the importance of the different transports and helped to make some vehicle models for her friends. She also saw videos of various transport to get some more ideas. She takes time to grasp the things taught in the class and also takes time to think the answers asked.
