Report for 203-24 (First Term)

Introduction

Amika is a regular child in the Bliss group, known for her cheerful disposition. She greets her peers with a big smile and enjoys a variety of food items, including vegetables and fruits, at the hostel. While she has learned to brush her teeth and take baths at school, she's still working on toilet training.

Circle Time

During circle time, Amika sits with her eyes closed in a dhyan mudra and chants all the teachings. She faces some challenges in pronouncing certain words correctly. She enjoys singing songs with actions, and she remembers all the songs, but she feels shy when asked to sing alone. However, in the assembly, she confidently sings with her group, although she may take some time to pronounce words and remember new songs.

Languages

Hindi

Amika likes listening to stories from big picture books. She can understand the full story and answer questions related to it. However, she struggles to retell the same story. When telling her own creative stories through drawings, she keeps her sentences brief. In the "Myself" topic, she draws her picture and provides information about her name, father's name, mother's name, group, age, favourite colour, fruits, and the reason for coming to school in Hindi. In the "Body Parts" topic, she learned the names of body parts in Hindi and their functions, contributing to a creative song in group activities. In the "My Family" topic, she drew her family members and provided 5-6 lines about her family.

English

Ambika likes making friends in the classroom and is comfortable with the children of her group. She always tries to answer with a sweet smile. She enjoys singing rhymes in the group. She loves listening to stories through puppets. She heard the story of the thirsty crow and then drew the picture and tried telling the same story and then the story was written on a paper. She could speak in Hindi and could speak some words in English.

In the topic of ‘My Body’ she learnt the names of the external body parts. She can now identify her body parts.

In the topic of myself she learnt how to speak their own names in full sentences, her age, her favourite colour and fruits, etc. She made a book out of it.

In the topic of My Family she learnt the names of her parents and how many members are there in her family. She learnt a rhyme on My Family.

Mathsematics

Amika enjoys learning pre-number concepts outside the group by observing nature, such as flowers, colourful butterflies, trees, and birds. Through classification and ordering, she has learned various concepts like long-short, thick-thin, heavy-light, round, and size comparisons by collecting leaves, sticks, and stones. She has also become familiar with colour names through patterns in rangometry and jodo cube.

Ambika's introduction to numbers starts with objects. She can count forwards to 100 by touching the beads in ganitmala and backward to 20 with objects. She can represent numbers on ganitmala up to 100. She's also able to identify before and after numbers up to 50. Additionally, she can perform small additions with one-digit numbers using objects and understands the concept of breaking down 10 with objects. Ambika can skip count by 2 and provide answers in group activities.

Skill work

She enjoys art class because she gets to engage in various activities, including paper folding, drawing, and painting. She draws flowers with great interest and ensures her drawings are neat and clean. She sometimes requires teacher's assistance in paper folding. Ambika's favourite colour is green.

Games

Ambika is a good girl who arrives early at school and completes rounds without getting tired. Her favourite games are "apple-apple banana," "mouse and cat," and "hide and seek." She remains calm even when others don't pass the ball to her but struggles in games like touch ball and basketball.

Celebrations

When it comes to celebrations, Ambika eagerly anticipates wearing costumes. She enjoys enacting dramas but tends to become shy and soft-spoken on the stage. Notable performances include a melodrama creative song about body parts on July 5th, a dance to "Sri Aurobindo Name Anado" on August 15th, making rakhi with thread and beads on August 30th, a dance performance on Janmashtami to "Adharm Madhuram" with her friends on September 7th, and a dance to "My Friend Ganesha" with her group on September 19th.
