Introduction: Puja shares a special bond with her closest friend, Vaidehi, as they often exchange sweets and exhibit kindness towards each other. Known for her tranquil and composed demeanour, Puja finds solace in singing songs and is particularly fond of the colour yellow for its brightness and radiance.

Hostel Accommodation: Puja prefers staying in the hostel over her home due to the enriching interactions with her friends. While she relishes these connections, she eagerly awaits her weekly visits home, promptly returning the next morning. Despite the distance from her home, she finds comfort and companionship in hostel life.

Health and Hygiene: Maintaining personal hygiene comes naturally to Puja as she independently manages her laundry and ensures regular bathing after evening games. She takes pride in neatly folding and organizing her clothes in her cupboard. Contributing to cleanliness efforts, she takes turns cleaning her room and communal areas on a weekly basis.

Self-Sufficiency: Puja's culinary preferences include puri with vegetable curry, especially relishing paneer dishes. She exercises moderation in her food intake, occasionally overindulging in paneer dishes. While she used to occasionally spill food, she has improved and now rarely does so. Although she sometimes talks while eating, she has reduced this habit over time.

Morning Ritual: Commencing her day after morning prayers, Puja engages in singing sessions before starting her classes. In the evening Satsang, she eagerly participates in singing various songs, deriving joy from the experience. She finds particular pleasure in reciting the chant 'Nilam bhuja shamal.'

Shramdan: Puja actively participates in shramdan activities, preferring tasks like cleaning stairs and mopping floors in the girls' hostel. She willingly assists elders in ensuring various areas are cleaned, contributing to the overall cleanliness and upkeep of the hostel. Her dedication to cleanliness extends to daily efforts in different areas, always ready to lend a helping hand wherever needed.

ACADEMICS

She can proficiently read three-letter words such as 'cat', 'pot', and 'bin', displaying a genuine enthusiasm for reading.

Hindi

Puja has successfully learned all the alphabets and matras and has improved her pronunciation over time. Although she speaks rarely in class, she effectively communicates when prompted by the teacher. Puja performed well in the play and enjoys reciting poems. She actively participates in language development activities by watching moral stories and sharing them with her classmates.

Maths

Puja is a very intelligent child and is very interested in maths. She is a very quiet child. Although she doesn't talk much in the class, she answers every question asked to her very quickly. Now she is learning to write three-digit numbers up to five hundred and has learned to arrange mixed numbers in ascending or descending order very nicely. She also enjoys doing comparison of numbers and after and before numbers.

Projects

Puja has shown great enthusiasm and aptitude in her studies over the past months, particularly excelling in four key topics:

+ Human Body Parts:

Puja requires additional support during project classes due to finding learning and remembering challenging. While external body part names were easier to remember, internal body part names proved more difficult. Nevertheless, Puja has made progress in learning both external and internal body parts.

+ Birds Topic:

Puja successfully learns the names of many bird species and can recognize them in her surroundings. She produces beautiful drawings of various birds and gathers detailed information about the owl, presenting it to the class with a well-crafted drawing.

Things around us

Puja has demonstrated a keen interest in learning new vocabulary related to her surroundings. She quickly grasps the meanings of new words taught by her teacher and confidently participates in class discussions. She has also showcased her creativity by creating drawings of various objects in her environment, thereby enhancing her understanding of the topic.

Plants

In the study of plants, Puja has shown remarkable progress. She has learned about the significance of plants, their different types, and their role in food production. Puja has successfully identified and categorized herbs, shrubs, and trees, and can confidently distinguish between cereals, pulses, oilseeds, and spices. Her ability to recognize various plant parts and illustrate them through drawings reflects her thorough understanding of the subject.

Food

Puja has exhibited a strong interest in learning about the importance of food and its impact on our health. She has acquired knowledge about different types of food, their sources, and the concept of a balanced diet. Puja actively participates in class discussions, asking insightful questions and demonstrating a genuine curiosity for the topic. Her initiative in creating drawings and charts related to animals' dietary habits and balanced nutrition further illustrates her dedication to learning.

CO-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

Art and craft

Puja radiates happiness and cheerfulness, readily offering assistance to her peers and diligently following the teacher's instructions. While she may encounter some challenges with paper folding, her drawings are consistently well-executed and completed punctually.

Sense

Puja enjoys sense class because she likes to do activities related to sense. She had played many games such as mirror walking, rearranging the objects and leader-leader change the action and Chinese whisper. Puja enjoyed playing these games. Whatever is done in the class, she does with full concentration and she does her work very neatly and cleanly. She does her work very slowly so that she can do it beautifully.
