MathsSagarika has completed the 2nd-grade book and started the 3rd-grade book.

She enjoys mathematics and is currently learning about measurement, including unit conversions and activities like measuring distances. She actively seeks improvement by checking her work and correcting mistakes.

Projects- Birds

Sagarika's interest in learning about birds led her to explore their activities, habitats, and behaviour. Bird-watching outings exposed her to various bird species, and she displayed enthusiasm in recognizing birds by their calls. Although she sometimes took extra time to respond to questions in class she actively engaged with the topic and expanded her knowledge of bird characteristics. Her independent bird drawings and descriptions in the group's book were a testament to her commitment. Bird documentaries provided her with further insight into bird-related aspects, enhancing her understanding.

Occupation

Sagarika wants to become a policewoman when she grows up because when she sees them, she feels proud of them and wants to become one of them. She took the help of a book to draw a policeman. When she is asked a question, then she takes a little time to answer. While the teachers teach, she tries to listen carefully. She had also written a few lines about policeman and did a role play on it.

Hindi

Sagarika has shown considerable improvement in her reading skills. She has finished writing the alphabets and constructing sentences with words. She recently started story writing, with a focus on improving her sentence structure. Her dictation skills have also improved, with fewer mistakes. Sagarika consistently has her notebook checked and boasts of an excellent handwriting. She particularly enjoys "Varna Vichhed" and always gets her notebook checked. While she may take some time to learn songs, she diligently repeats lines after the teachers. Sagarika is also learning Havan chants and has made progress, though some pronunciation challenges remain.

English

Sagarika has a keen interest in both group and independent reading. However, she faces challenges when attempting to retell stories, making it sound as if she was asked to fabricate a story. Improvement is needed in her reading and spelling skills. Sagarika maintains proper posture during class and readily seeks assistance when encountering unfamiliar words.

Sagarika tends to be fidgety, with her legs and hands constantly moving. She should work on controlling her movements while sitting. She has a sweet and melodious voice, a quick memory, and great enthusiasm for participating in plays.

She enjoys listening to English spoken in various accents and likes mimicking foreigners. This is why she enjoys watching English movies.

Odia

Sagarika is punctual, attentive, and now able to understand the meaning of some Odia words and sentences, although she faces difficulties in speaking. She strives to speak a few words and form sentences, showing determination and improvement. Sagarika enjoys listening to stories and learning and singing songs.

Arts and Crafts

Sagarika is a fan of art class where she engages in both crafting and drawing. Her drawing subjects range from plants and humans to nature scenes. Sagarika has worked with oil pastels, shading, and created drawings of bird body parts. She excels in crayon colouring and, despite her chatty disposition, produces impressive artwork.

Puzzles

Sagarika is skilled at puzzles, with the ability to complete 60, 70, and 100-piece puzzles. She enjoys puzzles because she appreciates the artwork they reveal. Sagarika concentrates well when working on puzzles. She can
