Shramdaan (Work Offering)

For the shramdaan, they work in pairs with some senior didis. Chandrama and Talsa oversee the Girls' Hostel cleaning, Bhavna takes care of the flower decoration in the school meditation hall, and the rest participate in activities like kitchen work, gardening, boys' hostel cleaning, school cleaning, and toilet cleaning. Each pair rotates these activities monthly. They perform these tasks diligently, aiming to create a clean environment in the school and hostels. They also consider themselves role models for younger students and want to develop these life skills in themselves and others. Thus, they not only guide and oversee the children but also actively engage in the activities. This approach has made them more organized and efficient in distributing work, resulting in cleaner school premises and surroundings.

academic year. Most of them attend online classes and seek guidance from Pranjali Bhaiya. They are working very hard for their exams.

Whenever help is needed in the kitchen, especially during the preparation of large quantities of dishes like puri, paratha, or any sweet, these children take the initiative to lend a helping hand. They cooperate and work with dedication in every task.

Volunteering

In addition to their studies, they volunteer to teach classes for 3-5 hours per day, choosing subjects based on their confidence levels. They put their best effort into reaching out and helping other children. Working with younger kids (3-10

Volunteering has not only made them more confident in specific subjects but also aided their own academic progress.

Along with volunteering for classes, they organize games and meditation sessions for the children. Each of them takes a turn

They also conduct meditation sessions once a week, teaching songs and bhajans to the children, striving to instill a genuine appreciation for music amidst the increasing influence of gadgets and technology in the village.

Games

They participate in games at 5 pm. Most of them play basketball, while some also enjoy football and volleyball. A few are regulars for games regardless of the weather. During the summer, they go for swimming in the reservoir as they all love it. This summer, they not only swam themselves but also helped the children of Gratitude, Progress, and Perseverance learn swimming. Some even went for games after coming back from swimming.

Celebrations

Whenever there is a function in the school, these children take the initiative to conduct programs. Though they may not always participate, they ensure that the younger children do. They make the children perform plays, dances, and songs, practicing set up small stalls selling different fast-food items, collecting the ingredients from the kitchen and preparing the food themselves. The various food items they made included lassi, boulder (boda), jhalmudi, chaat, and pani puri. They enjoyed the process of making and selling the food, and others enjoyed buying and eating it.

during class times to bring out their best. On Children's Day (November 14), they organized a picnic to a nearby jungle, taking care of the younger ones and enjoying themselves. On November 29, they sang 'Aa chalk ke Tujhe.' On Christmas, Faith Group sang a prayer, 'To Thee O Mother,' and a Hindi carol, 'Charni mein Dekho.' On Republic Day (January 26), they actively participated in the flag hoisting ceremony at the school. On Holi (March 8), they played with natural Holi colours made from vegetables, leaves, flowers, and besan, prepared by the Progress group. They also
