Report for 2023-24 (First Term)

Maths

Hemanto has completed the first book and is now working on the second book in mathematics. He makes a strong effort to concentrate and avoids getting distracted by his friends. Hemanto faces some challenges in subtraction and multiplication with three-digit numbers, but he's determined to improve his mental calculation skills. In group activities, he's learning about measurement and recently measured a 1-kilometer length of the road from the ashram to Sonambaguda. He has also learnt to convert kilometres to metres and kilograms to grams. However, he hasn't been taught about liquid measurements yet.

Projects-

Birds

Hemanto, an attentive and quick learner, absorbed information effortlessly during class. He posed questions when he encountered unfamiliar terms or sentences. He collaborated with Ranjit to create an eagle diagram, which he coloured independently. Bird-watching sessions were particularly exciting for Hemonto, and he demonstrated a knack for recognizing birds by their vocalizations. He also learned to categorize birds based on features and adaptations and developed a good understanding of bird body parts. New terms, such as "flightless" and "migration," were introduced, and Hemonto was keen to learn and apply them. His book, "What Is a Bird?" was produced with the assistance of his peers, illustrating his commitment to the project. Bird documentaries further fuelled his knowledge about birds, their habitats, and prey.

Occupation

In the class, Hemanto had taken the role of a postman. He did a role play and showed it in the assembly and he also distributed some letters written for them. He drew a very beautiful drawing of a postman. In the class when he was asked any questions then he could answer it properly. When he had any doubt, then he would ask the teacher and clear it.

Hindi

Hemanto has shown significant improvement in his reading skills. He has successfully completed writing the alphabets and has also started constructing sentences with two words. He can even write stories, although sometimes with minor sentence structure errors. However, he tends to work at a slower pace. Hemanto's spelling abilities are excellent, and he performs dictations very well. He maintains a neat and tidy notebook. In terms of grammar, he quickly grasped the concepts. Hemanto particularly enjoyed "Varna Vichhed" (Breaking and joining words), finding it the easiest. He is a fast learner when he pays full attention in class. Hemanto quickly picks up songs and poems if he's interested and attentive. If distracted, he may take more time to learn even a simple line. Hemanto has learnt several Havan mantras, although he struggles with pronouncing some of the words. Special attention helps him learn and chant correctly.

English

Hemanto is a sweet-natured and attentive student in the English class. He demonstrates his commitment to learning by actively listening to the teacher's instructions and maintaining proper classroom decorum.

Remarkably, Hemanto has made significant progress in his English reading skills. He is now capable of reading seven to eight-letter words with ease. His preference is for 3rd-level books, which he reads with enthusiasm.

Although Hemanto may encounter pronunciation challenges with certain words, such as those ending in "tion," "dge," and "wh," he consistently endeavours to improve his pronunciation. When tasked with retelling the story from the book he has just read, Hemanto can recount the narrative coherently. However, he may occasionally insert Hindi words when faced with English words he finds challenging to pronounce. Throughout his narration, his voice remains soft but clear.

In addition to reading, Hemanto participates in dictation exercises following his storybook readings. While he typically writes most words accurately, he may occasionally make minor errors, like substituting "en" for "ain" in the word

"mountain." Subsequently, Hemanto diligently corrects these spelling errors and writes the corrected words five times to reinforce his memory. His ability to recall information swiftly is indicative of a strong memory. Hemanto's commitment to improving his English skills and attention to detail is evident in his efforts.

Hemanto's pronunciation is not bad, but longer words can be difficult to pronounce. He has a keen interest in learning songs, poems, and short plays and is a good actor. Hemanto quickly learns his lines, and he should aim to overcome shyness. He enjoys watching movies, even if he doesn't fully understand them.

Odia

Hemanta is always punctual for the class. He is able to understand the meaning of a few words but faces difficulty in understanding a full sentence. He loves listening to stories. He takes keen interest in learning the Odia names of things around him and has learnt the names of flowers, fruits, trees and also some of the activities that they do in the school. In the class, he also learnt some good habits of an ideal child.

Arts and Crafts

Hemanto finds delight in drawing nature, birds, and human subjects. His preference is working with oil pastels, and he is known for his neat and clean artwork. Hemanto is hardworking, maintains a good mood, and is usually quiet in class. He quickly and attentively tackles art assignments and enjoys crafting birds, along with drawing bird body parts. Pencils and crayons are his favoured tools.

Puzzles

Hemanto is capable of completing 100-piece puzzles and occasionally tackles 60-70 piece puzzles. He finds puzzles interesting and is motivated to work on them. Hemanto is attentive and listens to didi.

Games and Sports

Hemanto likes to play ball games where he can run and kick, like football. He has a good concentrate and eye-hand coordination.
